Members of Boards and Commissions help shape future of Riverside

RIVERSIDE, Calif. – The City of Riverside is accepting applications from residents who want to serve on boards and commissions that help shape policies and practices at City Hall.

Riverside's 15 boards and commissions offer advice and guidance on important policy decisions that affect daily life in the city. Such issues include General Plan updates, building design, signs, parks, recreation, trees, streets, traffic regulations, public utilities, ethics, and the City Budget.

Members serve four-year terms and are eligible for consideration for reappointment for an additional four-year term. Applications are being accepted through November 9, 2018. Openings include:

- Charter Review Committee (Citywide and All Wards)
- Commission on Aging (Citywide and Wards 1, 6, and 7)
- Airport Commission (Citywide)
- Budget Engagement Commission (Citywide Business)
- Community Police Review Commission (Citywide and Ward 1)
- Cultural Heritage Board (Citywide and Ward 3)

“The Mayor and City Council members value the input from our community volunteers,” City Clerk Colleen J. Nicol said. “By serving as a member of one of the Boards and Commissions, residents will have an opportunity to make decisions that affect their neighborhoods and the city.”
